Inception date of the Global Phoenix Convertible Institutional Composite was March 27, 2009. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. Advent claims compliance with Global Investment Performance Standards (GIPS). Performance is as of September 30, 2021. Returns presented on a gross basis are substantially higher than returns presented on a net basis because gross returns do not reflect the deduction of investment advisory fees and other expenses that would be incurred by a client. Investment advisory fees have a compounding effect in reducing the value of a client portfolio over time. Pat performance is not a guarantee of future results. Please see the "Disclosures" section at the end of this presentation.

Overview

Advent Capital Management, LLC was founded in 1995 and is a registered investment advisor with the SEC. Advent manages approximately USD 11 billion in assets across several traditional, alternative, and closed-end fund strategies for corporations, public pension plans, insurance companies, foundations, endowments and high-net-worth individuals. Advent's proficiency in investing across the entire capital structure is driven by the strength of its fundamental, bottom-up credit and equity research. Advent's team is among the largest and most experienced in the industry with 22 seasoned investment professionals. The firm has been managing assets in traditional and alternative strategies for nearly 25 years. Advent is a signatory to the UN PRI.

Convertibles, An Overlooked Asset Class

Convertibles are an overlooked asset class despite outperforming broad equity and fixed income indices over time with lower volatility than equities. Convertibles are not a mainstream asset class, and are not often included in model portfolios of institutional consultants. Convertibles are not widely used in mutual funds, are rarely discussed in financial publications or electronic media, and do not typically trade on public exchanges. Yet, the global convertible market (USD 666 billion) is large enough to enable specialized managers to run large diversified portfolios and to generate attractive risk adjusted and absolute returns.

The convertible market has also undergone a positive structural transformation, as liquidity, diversification and quality of issuers have increased significantly with the growth of the market. The majority (over 90%) of the market is comprised of large cap and mid cap issuers. In addition, the terms of convertible deals have also become more favorable for investors, as call protection has been extended and bond maturities have been shortened from 25-30 years to 4-7 years. Despite all of these positive changes, convertible securities continue to be an overlooked asset class and are thus a "think outside the box" investment solution.

Investment Approach

The Strategy seeks high income and capital gains with low volatility by investing in theoretically cheap global convertible securities that trade close to their bond value, while seeking to limit downside risk. Advent selects bond-like convertibles that have favorable credit fundamentals as well as positive asymmetry. Positive asymmetry means capturing meaningful equity upside with significantly less downside risk. These "bond-like" convertibles demonstrate structural alpha. Advent's proprietary fundamental research is critical in evaluating cash flow and balance sheet trends in order to identify attractive investments.

Strategy

The Strategy seeks to exploit the inherent advantages of income convertibles by identifying opportunities among companies and sectors worldwide that have temporarily fallen into market disfavor. Global Phoenix is a growth and income strategy, with a value profile, targeting companies with attractive valuations, a stable to improving credit profile, long corporate histories and high potential returns.

There are multiple catalysts for income convertibles to appreciate. For example, the underlying stock may advance, the bonds accrete to par at maturity or the company may be acquired (which often triggers a change-in-control put). Investors in income convertibles are "paid to wait" for appreciation. Downside protection is provided by the principal repayment feature augmented by our proprietary credit research process and by the favorable structure of high income convertibles that tend to have short maturities typically averaging under five years. Attractive income convertibles have often "fallen between the cracks," having been sold by equity portfolio managers, but not yet identified by fixed-income investors.

2) The following is the criteria for inclusion in the Composite:

- All accounts must have had an initial account value of at least $10,000,000.
- The Composite will be composed of all accounts that meet the criteria to invest in Rule 144A securities.

3) The following pertains to performance results:

- All performance is presented in Euro Hedged.
- Annual returns for the Global Phoenix Convertible Income Institutional Composite are presented both gross of fees and net of a model management fee applied to each of the Advent accounts, which does not include expenses paid by the clients. Net returns use a model fee of 0.75%. The Global Phoenix Convertible Institutional advertised fee schedule is 1.00% on the first 25 million, 0.80% on the next $25 million, 0.65% on the next 50 million, and 0.55% on over 100 million. The management fees are described in Part 2 of Advent's Form ADV. Returns presented on a gross basis are substantially higher than returns presented on a net basis because gross returns do not reflect the deduction of investment advisory fees and other expenses that would be incurred by a client. Investment advisory fees have a compounding effect in reducing the value of a client portfolio over time.
- Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results.

4) Benchmark Information:

- The Composite is benchmarked to the Bloomberg Barclays Global Defensive Convertible Index. The Global Defensive Convertible Index - which is a sub index of the Bloomberg Barclays Global Convertibles Index and more closely represents Advent's Global Phoenix Strategy. Barclays breaks their convertible index into four sub categories: distressed, busted, typical and equity. The Global Defensive Convertible Index only includes busted and typical convertibles but further narrows the investment universe by excluding the top end of the typical converts by eliminating convertibles with parity greater than 100% and also excluding the bottom end of the busted category converts with a price below 80% of the accreted redemption price. The inception of the benchmark is March 27, 2009.
- Benchmark returns are not covered by the report of the independent verifiers.

Calculation Methodology:
The dispersion measure is the asset-weighted standard deviation for accounts in the composite for the entire year. Dispersion is not presented for periods less than one year or when there are five or fewer portfolios included in the composite for the full annual period.

GENERAL RISK WARNINGS:
Past performance and hypothetical performance does not guarantee, and is not a reliable indicator of, future results and the performance of the Fund and any sub-fund may be substantially different. Current performance may be lower or higher than performance shown. The performance of Shares may be volatile, and an investor could lose all or a substantial portion of any investment made in Shares. No representation is given that Shares are suitable for any particular investor. Market conditions can fluctuate and vary widely over time and can result in a loss of portfolio value. It should not be assumed that results for historic or hypothetical portfolio investments or investment strategies will be achieved for other investments in the future. No guarantee or representation is made that any investment strategy, Fund, sub-fund or account will achieve its investment objective or have positive returns. Investments may be in a variety of currencies and therefore changes in rates of exchange between currencies may cause the value of investments to decrease or increase. Furthermore, the value of investments may be adversely affected by fluctuations in exchange rates between the investor's reference currency and the base currency of the investments. Investments in derivative investments or FDI carry certain inherent risks such as the risk of counterparty default and before investing you should ensure you fully understand these risks. Please refer to the Offering Documents for a summary of FDI risks. Use of leverage may also magnify losses as well as gains to the extent leverage is employed. Returns presented on a gross basis are substantially higher than returns presented on a net basis because gross returns do not reflect the deduction of investment advisory fees and other expenses that would be incurred by a client. The returns of a client investment in any investment strategy will be reduced by the advisory fees and any other expenses it may incur in the management of its account. Advisory fees have a compounded effect in reducing account performance over time.

HYPOTHETICAL PERFORMANCE RESULTS:
Hypothetical performance results have many inherent limitations, some of which are described below. No representation is being made that any account will or is likely to achieve profits or losses similar to those that may be shown in this document. In fact, there are frequently sharp differences between hypothetical performance results and the actual results subsequently achieved by any particular trading program. One of the limitations of hypothetical performance results is that they are generally prepared with the benefit of hindsight. In addition, hypothetical trading does not involve financial risk, and no hypothetical trading record can completely account for the impact of financial risk in actual trading. For example, the ability to withstand losses or to adhere to a particular trading program in spite of trading losses are material points which can also adversely affect actual trading results. There are numerous other factors related to the markets in general or to the implementation of any specific trading program which cannot be fully accounted for in the preparation of hypothetical performance results and all of which can adversely affect actual trading results.
