ADVENT
CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, LLC

OVERVIEW

Advent Capital Management, LLC was founded in 1995 and is a registered investment advisor with the SEC. Advent manages over $9 billion in assets across several traditional, alternative, and closed-end fund strategies for corporations, public pension plans, insurance companies, foundations, endowments and high-net-worth individuals. Advent’s proficiency in investing across the entire capital structure is driven by the strength of its fundamental, bottom-up credit and equity research. Advent’s team of 24 investment professionals is among the largest and most experienced focused on convertibles. The firm has been managing assets in traditional and alternative strategies for over 25 years.

EXPERIENCED TEAM

Advent’s portfolio managers have on average 29 years of investment experience in convertible and high yield securities, and our 8 research analysts have on average 22 years of experience covering their sectors.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

The Phoenix Strategy seeks high returns with low volatility by investing in convertibles that trade close to bond value. Advent selects convertibles with high bond value content and positive asymmetry, issued by companies with favorable credit and equity fundamentals. Positive asymmetry means capturing meaningful equity upside with significantly less downside risk. Advent’s fundamental research is critical in evaluating cash flow and balance sheet trends in order to identify attractive investments. Our disciplined investment process with a rigorous credit focus has resulted in a zero default rate and only four down years since the inception of the Phoenix Strategy in 1996.

OVERLOOKED INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Phoenix exploits the inherent advantages of income convertibles by identifying opportunities among companies that have temporarily fallen into market disfavor, despite having long corporate histories and a stable-to-improving credit profile. Yields on income convertibles approach—and sometimes exceed—yields on non-convertible securities of the same companies. Phoenix is a growth and income strategy, with a value profile, targeting companies and sectors that are temporarily out-of-favor in the market, but have attractive valuations and growth profiles.

There are multiple catalysts for income convertibles to appreciate: the underlying stock may advance; the bonds accrete to par at maturity; the company may be acquired (which often triggers a change-in-control put). Investors in income convertibles are “paid to wait” for appreciation. Downside protection is provided by our focused credit-first research process and by the favorable structure of high income convertibles that tend to have short maturities (typically averaging under five years). Attractive income convertibles have often “fallen between the cracks,” having been sold by equity portfolio managers, but not yet identified by fixed-income investors.

The management fees are described in Part 2 of Advent's Form ADV. - The Composite is benchmarked to the ICE BofA Yield Alternatives Index. The benchmark is defined as convertible securities with deltas less than 40%. GENERAL RISK WARNINGS:

Past performance and hypothetical performance does not guarantee, and is not a reliable indicator of, future results and the performance of the Account may be substantially different. Current performance may be lower or higher than performance shown. The performance of an Advent investment strategy or Account may be volatile, and an investor could lose all or a substantial portion of any investment made in an Advent investment strategy or Account. No representation is given that an Advent investment strategy or Account is suitable for any particular investor. Market conditions can fluctuate and vary widely over time and can result in a loss of portfolio value. It should not be assumed that results for historic or hypothetical portfolio investments or investment strategies will be achieved for other investments in the future. No guarantee or representation is made that any Advent investment strategy or Account will achieve its investment objective or have positive returns. Investments may be in a variety of currencies and therefore changes in rates of exchange between currencies may cause the value of investments to decrease or increase. Furthermore, the value of investments may be adversely affected by fluctuations in exchange rates between the investor's reference currency and the base currency of the investments. Investments in derivative investments carry certain inherent risks such as the risk of counterparty default and before investing you should ensure you fully understand these risks. Use of leverage may also magnify losses as well as gains. Returns presented on a gross basis are substantially higher than returns presented on a net basis because gross returns do not reflect the deduction of investment advisory fees and other expenses that would be incurred by a client. The returns of a client investment in any investment strategy will be reduced by the advisory fees and any other expenses it may incur in the management of its account. Advisory fees have a compounded effect in reducing account performance over time. Investing in financial markets involves a substantial degree of risk and there can be no guarantee that the investment objectives of an Advent investment strategy or Account will be achieved. Investment losses may occur, and investors could lose some or all of their investment. This document may contain certain forward-looking statements. In some cases forward looking statements can be identified by the use of terms such as "believes", "estimates", "anticipates", "projects", "expects", "intends", "may", "will", "seeks" or "should" or variations thereof, or by discussions of strategy, plans, objectives, goals, future events or intentions. Actual outcomes and results may differ materially from any outcomes or results expressed or implied by such forward-thinking statements. The success or achievement of various results, targets and objectives is dependent upon a multitude of factors, many of which are beyond the control of Advent.
